BROUGHT TO YOU BY

FIRST THINGS FIRST

Ready for School. Set for Life.

Cochise Regional Partnership Council

First Things First (FTF), approved by Arizona voters, works to ensure that our youngest children have access to quality early childhood experiences so they will start school healthy and ready to succeed. Across the state, regional partnership councils – in collaboration with local leaders – identify the educational and health needs of children from birth through five in their communities and fund strategies to address those needs.

Parents as Teachers mission is to provide information, support and encouragement parents need to help their children develop optimally during the crucial early years of life. The Parent as Teachers program is a nationally recognized home visitation program that uses evidence based curriculum. This is a free program for prenatal through 3 years of age. Parent Educators believe that parents are their children's first and most influential teachers and the early years are critical for optimal development. Parent Educators work with parents to establish family goals and offer developmental, vision, hearing and health screenings every six months, as well as provide families with resources in the community. Parents as Teachers offer group connections once a month to help foster relationships among families while learning something new.

In the late 1800's many wealthy people in Europe started collecting odd and eccentric items from around the world. Most placed these oddities in cabinets later referred to as cabinets of curiosities. Eventually people started showcasing their oddities in traveling road shows. In the United States people started opening up their 'dime museums' in the back of their small town storefronts to entice the public to view their strange and unusual collections.

Located inside The Source Within, the Bisbee Mini Museum of the Bizarre showcases Renee Gardner's collection of strange, unusual, and odd objects from around the world. Items in the collection include a mummified fairy, two-headed squirrel, glass eye, death mask of John Dillinger and atomic dime to name a few.

With a history deserving of National Landmark status, it's only fitting that Bisbee's past be captured and reflected in a museum like no other. Which is exactly why the Bisbee Mining & Historical Museum recently joined forces with the Smithsonian's Affiliation Program. Once known as The Queen of the Copper Camps, Bisbee is nestled among the Mule Mountains, work renowned for its diverse minerals and wealth of copper. Although its mines closed in the 70s, the small town's legacy has long been preserved not only in its architecture and mining landscape, but in a museum that has welcomed, educated and entertained more than a half-million visitors ever since. Featured among its exhibits is "Bisbee: Urban Outpost on the Frontier," an in-depth look at the depths - and heights - to which miners and settlers went to carve a community and a living out of rock.

Parents as Teachers mission is to provide information, support and encouragement parents need to help their children develop optimally during the crucial early years of life. The Parent as Teachers program is a nationally recognized home visitation program that uses evidence based curriculum. This is a free program for prenatal through 3 years of age. Parent Educators believe that parents are their children's first and most influential teachers and the early years are critical for optimal development. Parent Educators work with parents to establish family goals and offer developmental, vision, hearing and health screenings every six months, as well as provide families with resources in the community. Parents as Teachers offer group connections once a month to help foster relationships among families while learning something new.

Trained Community Health Workers educate pregnant and post-partum women on all aspects of pregnancy and family life with young children. Program supports the first time pregnant women with health information regarding her pregnancy to assist with a more positive outcome. Program also provides a post-partum depression assessment so that clients may be referred to the appropriate services needed. After birth, the program conducts home safety checks and monitor the growth and development of the baby through a screening known as "Ages and Stages" so that clients can be referred to outside assistance as needed. Services are provided using the home visitation model.

Parents as Teachers mission is to provide information, support and encouragement parents need to help their children develop optimally during the crucial early years of life. The Parent as Teachers program is a nationally recognized home visitation program that uses evidence based curriculum. This is a free program for prenatal through 3 years of age. Parent Educators believe that parents are their children's first and most influential teachers and the early years are critical for optimal development. Parent Educators work with parents to establish family goals and offer developmental, vision, hearing and health screenings every six months, as well as provide families with resources in the community. Parents as Teachers offer group connections once a month to help foster relationships among families while learning something new.
