

FIRST THINGS FIRST

Ready for School. Set for Life.

AGENDA ITEM: Statewide, Multi-regional and Grants Report

BACKGROUND: The attached table provides information on the statewide strategies, which include those funded, at least partially, by statewide program funds and the multi-regional strategies funded by multiple regions and using a centralized administrative structure. The second column indicates the origin of the funding for each strategy, such as FTF state, FTF regions and federal. Columns 3, 4 and 5 show the FY 2011 budget and financial reimbursements by First Things First as of November 18, 2010, for each strategy. Columns 6 and 7 list the target service number for this fiscal year and the actual service number as of the FY 2011 first quarter report. The final column provides a brief summary of each strategy related to expenditures, activities and accomplishments since the last Board Report. In addition, the last page of the report addresses the three federal grants which First Things First has received – two funded and one for technical assistance.

By the end of FY 2011, most of the 864 participants will have been selected for enrollment. There will always be a small percentage of programs that decline participation or terminate from the program due to varied reasons (closure, etc.) - Hiring is in process for FY 2011 expansion; once completed, personnel costs will rise substantially. - Many Quality First programs are entering their second year of quality improvement. Programs have received initial improvement grants for facility improvements, new materials, equipment, and professional development. Reports have included descriptions of enriched environments, more positive interactions and improved health and safety. - Second year programs are undergoing progress assessments, which are completed 12 – 15 months after the initial assessment year to identify quality achievement and set goals for the second year of quality improvement. During the most recent reporting period, almost 100% of scheduled program assessments were completed within the mandated timelines. - Grantees are collaborating with community partners, including FTF funded programs to better support Quality First programs in accessing available resources and avoid duplication of services.

							Quality Rating - The Quality First Rating Pilot Study began September 2010. Currently, 52 programs representing 16 regional areas are participating in the Pilot Study. All types of programs are represented – faith-based, private, Head Start, and public schools. - The results of the Pilot Study will be used to inform decisions about full implementation of the rating system and to finalize the process for calculating a star rating using the Quality First Point Scale document, Environmental Rating Scales and the Classroom Assessment Scoring System. The Pilot Study is anticipated to end in December 2010. Public forums will be scheduled throughout the state to share results of the Pilot Study once Pilot assessment data is compiled and analyzed.
T.E.A.C.H. Reimbursement for scholarships has also been lagging due to continuing negative economic conditions and additional stresses on both programs and staff. Programs have had to lay off staff or reduce their hours and are finding it difficult to pay the sponsoring program portion of the scholarship; therefore, fewer than expected early childhood staff have enrolled in coursework. To address this barrier, financial and administrative waivers have been instituted. - T.E.A.C.H. reported a significant increase in the number of outreach activities in the first quarter of FY 2011 with staff participating in 89 community outreach events that provided contact with 1,983 individuals and 7,019 additional contacts by telephone and email to 8,892 providers across the state to inform them of the TEACH program and application process. Informational presentations have been customized to meet the needs of providers by having smaller, pre-scheduled sessions at on-site locations convenient to potential applicants. - T.E.A.C.H. is actively recruiting for the spring 2011 semester; scholars are completing their first contract year with the program, resulting in 93 issued bonuses and 72 contracts that have been renewed for an additional year. - T.E.A.C.H. continues to develop the Bachelors Degree Pilot Project in collaboration with Boeing, Mesa Community College and ASU. T.E.A.C.H. has identified two of the three candidates for this pilot, who will begin their courses in Spring 2011.

							Waivers for programs that are faced with financial or administrative barriers to their participation, for example -- the human resources policies or contract prohibits payment of a salary differential to staff, or a program is unable to pay the cost of a program component such as the bonus -- have now been re-instated. One primary addition to the waiver process to improve accountability is the requirement must be notarized. All T.E.A.C.H. Program Specialists have been commissioned as public notaries, allowing T.E.A.C.H. Specialists to witness and notarize the waivers documents. The notary process for Tribal programs is still being discussed.
